

A Different Kind of Continuing Education!

Since the early 1970s Larry Hedges has been offering continuing education to practicing therapists at the Listening Perspectives Study Center in Orange, California.

Dr. Hedges is now specializing in small, day-long, personalized study groups limited to 10 participants usually meeting in his office on a Sunday with pastries and coffee in the morning and lunch provided.

This small group format allows personal questions to be carefully worked on and difficult issues to be sorted out by the instructor as well as a group of peers. It also allows for personal acquaintances and more intimate networking possibilities.

Call Monica (714) 633-3933 to register or be added to our email list.

- > Law and Ethics Update: dealing with changes in laws, ethics, and licensing board procedures
- > Advanced supervision: dealing with the psychodynamics of the supervisory relationship
- > Multicultural diversity: dealing with cross-cultural encounters and ways we can work toward bridging worlds of difference
- > Relational Psychotherapy: dealing with emerging issues in the cuttingedge of relational psychotherapy theory and practice
- > Psychological Issues in Women's Literature: reading and discussing the psychological issues in a book of fiction or nonfiction every month by a woman author
- > Reaching the Neuropsychological Unconscious: Learning how to make use in psychotherapy practice of the vast research accumulated over the last two decades about our brain and neurological functioning